

I am writing about the FCC's telephone privacy proposal. Here in Indiana we have a very fine privacy law that protects us from unwanted telephone solicitations. If the FCC proposes a lower national standard that would affect us. I am asking that you not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's telephone privacy protection, or that you exempt states that already have a stricter standard and allow them to keep what they already have. Here in Indiana we are very satisfied with our law and unwanted telemarketing calls have dropped from about 12 a week to 2.
